Treating Trauma by Attachment Congress

The WADP and DAP Congress on "Trauma, Attachment, and Personality," Cracow, Poland, 16-19 March 2005

Gisela Finke and Thomas Bihler (München)

Rarely do topic, moment, and place dovetail so perfectly as the 16th-19th Association for Dynamic Psychiatry (WADP) and the 16th-19th International Psychoanalysis (DAP) at their recent joint congress in Cracow, Poland.

the country's 35 million inhabitants—incapable of defending themselves directly at the hands of Germans. Under the terms of the 1939, Poland was divided between Germany and the Soviet Union.

By 1945, war, occupation, the decimation of the population, and the Russian occupation the country only continued to suffer. Poland today suffered loss or trauma of such magnitude in the aftermath.

This congress in Cracow thus became a meeting not only for scholars and therapists but also between the survivors and their victims. Repeatedly gripped and
