

Contents

- 89 Mapping conservation priorities in the Mediterranean: the issue of non-native freshwater fish introductions
R. E. Gozlan
- 93 The common carp, Cyprinus carpio, in the Mediterranean region: origin, distribution, economic benefits, impacts and management
L. Vilizzi
- 111 Using stable isotope analyses to determine the ecological effects of non-native fishes
J. Cucherousset, S. Bouletreau, A. Martino, J.-M. Roussel & F. Santoul
- 120 The use of molecular tools in invasion biology: an emphasis on freshwater ecosystems
S. Blanchet
- 133 A review on pathways and drivers of use regarding non-native freshwater fish introductions in the Mediterranean region
E. Tricarico
- 142 Non-native fish impacts on Mediterranean freshwater ecosystems: current knowledge and research needs
F. Ribeiro & P. M. Leunda
- 157 Utility of direct observational methods for assessing competitive interactions between non-native and native freshwater fishes
D. Almeida & G. D. Grossman
- 167 Circumstantial evidence of gibel carp, Carassius gibelio, reproductive competition exerted on native fish species in a mesotrophic reservoir
A. S. Tarkan, Ö. Gaygusuz, Ç. G. Gaygusuz, G. Saç & G. H. Copp
- 178 Are introduced gibel carp Carassius gibelio in Turkey more invasive in artificial than in natural waters?
A. S. Tarkan, G. H. Copp, N. Top, N. Özdemir, B. Önsoy, G. Bilge, H. Filiz, S. Yapici, F. G. Ekmekçi, Ş. G. Kirankaya, Ö. Emiroğlu, Ö. Gaygusuz, Ç. G. Gaygusuz, A. Oymak, G. Özcan & G. Saç