

Contents

Special Section: Rural Realities in the Post-Socialist Space

R. Kay, S. Shubin and T. Thelen	55	Rural realities in the post-socialist space
R. Kay	63	Managing everyday (in)securities: Normative values, emotional security and symbolic recognition in the lives of Russian rural elders
A. Pasieka	72	Resurrected pigs, dyed foxes and beloved cows: Religious diversity and nostalgia for socialism in rural Poland
M. Ruzicka	81	Continuity or rupture? Roma/Gypsy communities in rural and urban environments under post-socialism
S. Shubin	89	Understanding care for the poor in rural Russia
G. Schwarcz	99	Ethnicizing poverty through social security provision in rural Hungary
K. Kovács	108	Rescuing a small village school in the context of rural change in Hungary
J. Pallot	118	Changing symbolic and geographical boundaries between penal zones and rural communities in the Russian Federation

M. Nakhshina	130	‘Without fish, there would be nothing here’: Attitudes to salmon and identification with place in a Russian coastal village
E.-M. Trelle, B. van Hoven and P. Huigen	139	‘It’s good to live in Järva-Jaani but we can’t stay here’: Youth and belonging in rural Estonia
Regular Papers
E. Compton and R.J.S.(Bob) Beeton	149	An accidental outcome: Social capital and its implications for Landcare and the “status quo”
J. Whittaker, J. Handmer and D. Mercer	161	Vulnerability to bushfires in rural Australia: A case study from East Gippsland, Victoria
R.J.F. Burton, S. Peoples and M.H. Cooper	174	Building ‘cowshed cultures’: A cultural perspective on the promotion of stockmanship and animal welfare on dairy farms