

Inhalt

| | |
|---|-----|
| Editorial | 03 |
| István M. Fehér: Heidegger's Development up to Being and Time: The Concept of Being-in-the-World and the Distinction between Authenticity and Inauthenticity..... | 05 |
| Oldřich Čálek: Die Daseinsanalyse ist keine angewandte Philosophie | 23 |
| Hans-Dieter Foerster: Being-human is only accessible to philosophy and of importance for psychotherapeutic practice. Examples | 31 |
| Todd DuBose: Where the crooked are made straight: "Being-with" the fated hope of escaping facticity | 43 |
| Anna Hogenová: Time and phenomenology..... | 51 |
| Hansjörg Reck: "Psychotherapy from the Beginning" "Development" in Daseinsanalysis and the meaning of "Dasein" in Psychotherapy..... | 59 |
| Thanasis Georgas: The Oedipus complex from a daseinsanalytic perspective | 69 |
| József Krékits: Being-in-the-World of Oedipus | 77 |
| Carlos Eduardo Carvalho Freire: What We Concretely Do as Psychotherapists..... | 87 |
| Narancsik Gabriella, Szummer Csaba: Closing the gap between phenomenological and naturalistic approaches in psychology and philosophy – perspectives for the new millennium | 97 |
| Sarka & Alesch Wotruba: On Dasein Stagnation (Wenn das Dasein zum Stillstand kommt) | 103 |
| João Augusto Pompeia: Emotional Aspects in the Daseinsanalytic Therapy | 113 |
| Kriton Christianopoulos: Five proposals of Ancient Chinese thought for the possible use in Phenomenology / Existential Psychoanalysis | 131 |
| Register 1984 – 1998 | 141 |
| Register 2002– 2011 | 153 |