
Plant Protection

Quarterly

Volume 28 No.3 2013

Contents

Weeds have no boundaries

- Dr Hanwen Wu 64
- Containment as a strategic option for managing plant invasion
Anthony C. Grice, John R. Clarkson, Helen T. Murphy, Cameron S. Fletcher and David A. Westcott 64
- Border security: Spotlight on weeds
Katrina L. Cuthbert 68
- Benefits of national weed initiatives for New South Wales: Successes and future opportunities
Hillary Cherry and Matt Sheehan 70
- Weeds down under: Invasion of the sub-Antarctic wilderness of Macquarie Island
Laura Williams, Paul Kristiansen, Justine Shaw, Brian Sindel and Susan C. Wilson 73
- Making the move from traditional to contemporary weed management
Jim Willmott 75
- Don't let the truth get in the way of a good story. The declaration of weeds that affect the environment started in 1907 in New South Wales
Stephen B. Johnson 77
- Robotic aircraft and intelligent surveillance systems for weed detection
Calvin Hung and Salah Sukkarieh 80
- A success story: The Cape broom psyllid, Arytinnis hakani Loginova
Paul Sullivan 83
- Biosecurity legislation, dispersal of local weeds and the tort of private nuisance
Philip Blackmore 85
- Determining the efficacy of the herbicides endothal and diquat on the aquatic weed sagittaria in irrigation channels
Daniel Clements, Tony M. Dugdale and Trevor D. Hunt 87
- Genetic variation in Solanum elaeagnifolium in Australia using SSR markers
Xiaocheng Zhu, Hanwen Wu, Harsh Raman, Deirdre Lemerle, Rex Stanton and Geoffrey E. Burrows 90
- Recent advances in galenia control
Tony Cook 94