

JOURNAL OF RURAL STUDIES

Volume 33

January 2014

Contents

- | | | |
|--|-----|---|
| A. Kilpeläinen and M. Seppänen | 1 | Information technology and everyday life in ageing rural villages |
| M. Forbord, H. Bjørkhaug and R.J.F. Burton | 9 | Drivers of change in Norwegian agricultural land control and the emergence of rental farming |
| R. Mc Morran, A.J. Scott and M.F. Price | 20 | Reconstructing sustainability; participant experiences of community land tenure in North West Scotland |
| S.A. Golding | 32 | Moving narratives: Using online forums to study amenity out-migration in the American Midwest |
| J. Quaadvlieg, I.M. García Roca and M.A.F. Ros-Tonen | 41 | Is Amazon nut certification a solution for increased smallholder empowerment in Peruvian Amazonia? |
| M. Phillips | 56 | Baroque rurality in an English village |
| S. Liu, F. Xie, H. Zhang and S. Guo | 71 | Influences on rural migrant workers' selection of employment location in the mountainous and upland areas of Sichuan, China |
| R.J.F. Burton and S. Peoples | 82 | Market liberalisation and drought in New Zealand: A case of 'double exposure' for dryland sheep farmers? |
| | 95 | Animals, technologies and people in rural spaces: Introduction to a special issue on emerging geographies of animal–technology co-productions |
| C. Mather | 99 | Avian influenza multiple: Enacting realities and dealing with policies in South Africa's farmed ostrich sector |
| V. Mason and P.R. Hope | 107 | Echoes in the dark: Technological encounters with bats |

Contents continued on inside back cover

Contents continued from outside back cover

P. Hansen	119	Becoming bovine: Mechanics and metamorphosis in Hokkaido's animal-human-machine
L. Holloway, C. Bear and K. Wilkinson	131	Re-capturing bovine life: Robot–cow relationships, freedom and control in dairy farming
H. Buller and E. Roe	141	Modifying and commodifying farm animal welfare: The economisation of layer chickens
C. Morris and L. Holloway	150	Genetics and livestock breeding in the UK: Co-constructing technologies and heterogeneous biosocial collectivities