

Plant Protection

Quarterly

Volume 30 No.3 2015

In this issue:

- An introduction to the symposium: Managing weeds for conservation of biodiversity in New South Wales
Stephen B. Johnson Peter J. Turner and Hillary Cherry 72
- Effective weed management from theory to reality
Tim Scanlon 76
- Using pathogens to biologically control environmental weeds – updates
Louise Morin 82
- Initial identification and prioritisation of weeds of conservation management areas in the Kosciuszko to Coast (K2C) corridor of New South Wales, Australia
Robert C. Godfree and Jacqui M. Stol 86
- A collaborative approach to the impacts of a changing climate: Early detection of emerging weeds in the Australian Alps
M. Schroder, H. Burgess, T. Greville and K.L. McDougall 93
- Using robotic aircraft and intelligent surveillance systems for orange hawkweed detection
Calvin Hung and Salah Sukkarieh 100
- The invasive weed ox-eye daisy, Leucanthemum vulgare Lam. (Asteraceae): Prospects for its management in New South Wales
Andrew J. McConnachie, Elouise Peach, Peter J. Turner, Sonja Stutz, Urs Schaffner and Aaron Simmons 103
- Hawkweed eradication from NSW: Could this be ‘the first’?
Mark A. Hamilton, Hillary Cherry and Peter J. Turner 110
-