

Journal of Agricultural and Environmental Ethics

Volume 30 · Number 4 · August 2017

Special Issue: Animal Welfare Impact Assessment and the Ethics of the Great British Badger Cull

Guest Editors: Steven P. McCulloch · Michael J. Reiss

EDITORIAL

From the Editor: Preface to this Special Issue on Animal Welfare Impact Assessment
J. Burkhardt 465

ARTICLES

Bovine Tuberculosis and Badger Control in Britain: Science, Policy and Politics
S.P. McCulloch · M.J. Reiss 469

The Development of an Animal Welfare Impact Assessment (AWIA) Tool and Its Application to Bovine Tuberculosis and Badger Control in England
S.P. McCulloch · M.J. Reiss 485

Bovine Tuberculosis and Badger Culling in England: A Utilitarian Analysis of Policy Options
S.P. McCulloch · M.J. Reiss 511

Bovine Tuberculosis and Badger Culling in England: An Animal Rights-Based Analysis of Policy Options
S.P. McCulloch · M.J. Reiss 535

Bovine Tuberculosis Policy in England: Would a Virtuous Government Cull Mr Badger?
S.P. McCulloch · M.J. Reiss 551

Animal Ethics and the Culling of Badgers: A Reply to McCulloch and Reiss
B.E. Rollin 565

REVIEW PAPERS

Animal Welfare Impact Assessments: A Good Way of Giving the Affected Animals a Voice When Trying to Tackle Wild Animal Controversies?
P. Sandøe · C. Gamborg 571

Bovine TB, Badger Culling and Applied Ethics: Utilitarianism, Animal Welfare and Rights
R. Garner 579

ARTICLES

Causal Inefficacy and Utilitarian Arguments Against the Consumption of Factory-Farmed Products
M. Gorin 585

Consumer Food Ethics: Considerations of Vulnerability, Suffering, and Harm
Y. Manyukhina 595