

FOOD, CULTURE & SOCIETY

VOLUME 20 | ISSUE 2 | JUNE 2017

CONTENTS

Articles

- 193 Less Palatable, Still Valuable: Taste, Crop Agrobiodiversity, and Culinary Heritage
GREG DE ST. MAURICE AND THERESA L. MILLER
- 201 Sago: A Disparaged but Essential Food of the Abelam of Papua New Guinea
RICHARD SCAGLION
- 217 Producing Heritage: Politics, Patrimony, and Palatability in the Reinvention of Lowcountry Cuisine
BRADLEY M. JONES
- 237 Cooking to be Modern but Eating to be Healthy: The Role of Dawa-Dawa in Contemporary Ghanaian Foodways
JESSICA R. HAM
- 257 "The Heirloom Tomato Is 'In'. Does It Matter How It Tastes?"
HUGH JOSEPH, EMILY NINK, ASHLEY MCCARTHY, ELLEN MESSER
AND SEAN B. CASH
- 281 Everything but the Taste: Kyoto's Shishigatani Squash as Culinary Heritage
GREG DE ST. MAURICE
- 303 Transforming Millets: Strategies and Struggles in Changing Taste in Madurai
MADELINE CHERA
- 325 Valuing the Bad and the Ugly: Tasting Agrobiodiversity Among the Indigenous Canela
THERESA L. MILLER
- 347 Concluding Thoughts and Marginal Provocations
RICHARD WILK

355 Reviews

M. Pilar Opazo, Appetite for Innovation: Creativity and Change at elBulli
Reviewed by JENNIFER M. DILLON

Elsbeth Probyn, Eating the Ocean
Reviewed by SHINGO HAMADA

Dwight Furrow, American Foodie: Taste, Art, and the Cultural Revolution
Reviewed by ALISON PEARLMAN

Kate Cairns & Josée Johnston, Food and Femininity
Reviewed by CHRISTIE SILLO