

CONTENTS

Special Issue: The use of spatial ecology for conservation

Guest Editors: Mark O'Connell and Richard Smithers

Detecting and measuring threats to biodiversity: The use of spatial ecological data to derive and evaluate conservation action M. O'Connell	1	Application of open source tools for biodiversity conservation and natural resource management in East Africa V.N. Mose, D. Western and P. Tyrrell	35
UAVs in pursuit of plant conservation - Real world experiences S. Baena, D.S. Boyd and J. Moat	2	Impact of climate and land use change on ecosystem services: A case study of Samutsakorn province, Thailand S. Monprapussorn	45
Depiction of uncertainty in the visually interpreted land cover data J. Brus, V. Pechanec and I. Machar	10	Modelling of the carbon sequestration and its prediction under climate change V. Pechanec, J. Purkyt, A. Benc, C. Nwaogu, L. Štěřbová and P. Cudlín	50
Obstacles to gathering conservation evidence from the monitoring of nature reserves: A spatial solution? K. Meakin and M. O'Connell	14	Landscape delineation strategy and size of mapping units impact the performance of habitat suitability models J. Delangre, J. Radoux and M. Dufrêne	55
Quantifying changes in growth strategy and environmental variables in sensitive semi-natural vegetation communities using Vegetation Trend Analysis, a case study C. Hancock	17	Plasticity in foraging behaviour as a possible response to climate change M.R. Evans and A. Moustakas	61
R2MCDS: An R package for the analysis of multi-species datasets collected using distance sampling F. Bolduc, C. Roy and F. Rousseu	23	On the usefulness of prediction intervals for local species distribution model forecasts C. Kampichler and H. Sierdsema	67
Decision support framework for the prioritization of coral reefs in the U.S. Virgin Islands S.J. Pittman, M. Poti, C.F.G. Jeffrey, L.M. Kracker and A. Mabrouk	26	Relationships between tree sparrow Passer montanus fledging success and the quantity and quality of agricultural habitats – A model comparison study N.M. McHugh, M. Prior, S.R. Leather and J.M. Holland	73