

trace elements and electrolytes

Originals

- An evaluation of zinc, homocysteine, and vitamin D levels in adolescents with polycystic ovary syndrome 1
Gürkan Çıkım and Abdullah Tok
-
- Evaluation of calcium, potassium, and magnesium content of coffee beverages commonly consumed by Koreans with comparison of café-made coffee and ready-to-drink coffee products 7
Hyun-Jung Lee, In-young Choi, Mi-Kyeong Choi, and Mi-Hyun Kim
-
- Association of beverage intake with urinary Na and K excretion among Korean young adults 16
Yeon-Kyung Lee, Young-Ran Heo, Taisun Hyun, Eun-Soon Lyu, Haeryun Park, Hee-Kyong Ro, and Mi-Kyeong Choi
-
- Effects of exposure to metallic mercury vapor at low concentrations on urinary excretion of NAG activity, protein, and mercury 25
Nobuo Ishihara

Review

- An analysis of brain tumor trace elements and their effects 32
Umar Shahbaz and Xiao bin Yu

Letters to the editor

- A quick method of detecting Mg electrode inaccuracies within large test groups 43
Sepp Porta, K.-Bernd Arni, and Johann Mernak
-
- Comment: Ionized magnesium status in the elderly 45
Klaus Kisters, Lukas Kisters, and Uwe Gröber