

3.3. 'The whole thing should be confiscated': Gaining control over medical films	88
3.4. The reassessment of medical films for eugenic purposes	95
3.5. The production of new university films	101
3.6. The financial dimension of the University Department	106
4. Going to war: The RWU and military organisations	108
4.1. 'Confiscating working space': The transformation of the RWU after 1939	108
4.2. 'Confiscating living space': RWU 'troop care' and medical instruction for the German army, the SS and the SA	116
4.3. The RWU and military film projects	123
5. The 'political oasis' myth: The RWU as a centre of tolerance and opposition	129
IV. MEDICAL FILMS FOR MENTAL AND RACIAL HYGIENE EDUCATION	135
1. Introduction	135
2. Propaganda to legitimise the Sterilisation Law	137
3. Compulsory sterilisation and medical films of the RWU	141
4. The 'nursery school of racial science': Racial hygiene education and biology films for schools	143
5. Hereditary biology and educational films: The case of Hans Nachtsheim	157
6. Mental hygiene and cinematography	161
7. Psychiatrists, hereditary health and medical training through films	168
8. Conclusion	173
V. 'IDENTIFYING THE HANDICAPPED': NEUROPSYCHIATRIC FILMS MADE BY THE RWU, 1935-1945	176
1. Introduction	176
2. The problem of informed consent in medical films	179
3. Neuropsychiatric film research at the University of Frankfurt	183
3.1. Karl Kleist and university films after 1933	189
3.2. The Film 'Hereditary and Acquired Epilepsy' as visual evidence to support sterilisation legislation	196
3.3. Promoting the extension of the Sterilisation Law	204
4. Neuropsychiatric film research at the University of Berlin on the eve of the 'euthanasia' programme	211

4.1. The idea
The case
4.2. The antagonism in psychiatry
5. Conclusion

VI. 'BUILDING A RACIAL MEDICAL FILM'

1. Introduction
2. Killing the most dangerous programme
3. The RWU film
4. 'The more the better'
5. Post-war career

VII. 'THE VICARAGE AND THE MORALITY'

1. Denazifying Germany
2. Three new institutions
3. 'The Vicars of Christ'
4. Medical film and the church

APPENDICES

1. Select filmography between 1933 and 1945
2. Medical film holdings to the RWU survey

BIBLIOGRAPHY

Archival sources
Unpublished sources
Sources published before 1945
Sources published after 1945

INDEX